

Torino, 14.07.20

Dear Members of the Jury of the Enrico Anglesio Prize,

As already announced to many of you in previous correspondence, the Fondo Elena Moroni has decided to maintain the Enrico Anglesio Prize also for this difficult and strange year, with the most of the conferences canceled or postponed. With an extra effort, we will run

The Enrico Anglesio Prize 2020 Virtual

The contest of the young researchers will be run in two steps. First they will submit a short written dissertation. The Jury will select a shortlist of 5 (or more, were the response higher than usual for the traditional “in person” editions). These finalists are expected to submit a short video presentation of their work. Then a winner will be selected by the Jury who will evaluate the videos. Finally an online Award Ceremony will take place at the mid of November (broadcasting the videos, and with the possibility of some discussion between the competitors and the Jurors) and the winner will be declared. The duration and the format of the ceremony will depend on the local time of the finalists, and on the level of the IT availability for the participants and for the virtual ceremony hall.

The three main traditional features of the Enrico Anglesio Prize, the scientific strength of the works, the ability of the candidate in communicating his/her results, and the multiplication of the amount in case of publication should be all maintained in the virtual format, with the second even more stimulating through the preparation of the video.

We hope that you, the members of the Jury, will be available to contribute also this year in the two usual ways, disseminating the announcement and encouraging the participation of the young colleagues of your institutions, and acting as evaluators/jurors in the different phases of the competition. We are grateful if you could confirm your availability since now.

At the Fondo Elena Moroni website, www.fondoelenamoroni.org , section Prize, you can find more details about the rules, the procedures and the timetable of the EAP 2020 Virtual.

Yours sincerely
